BRILLIANT RECEPTION GIVEN JUDICIARY AT WHITE HOUSE

Second of State Levees Noteworthy for Excellent Management in Caring for Comforts of Many Guests.

The President and Mrs. Harding held the second of their prescribed state levees at the White House last night, the event being in honor of the Supreme Court and other judiciary of the District. While the reception was exceedingly brilliant, many diplomats with the rank of ambassador and minister attending, and there were other notable folk of the world present to pay homage to the bench, the thing which most profoundly impressed those with long-seasoned vision and knowledge of state functions, was the consummate care with which each small detail was thought out for the comfort of the guests by the mistress of the White House.

While losing none of the dignity of the grand march down the state airway and into the blue room, the grouping of the guests of honor—the entire judiciary of Washington and many judicial folk of other cities—in the red corridor and state dining room rather added to the charming effect, furnishing colorful background for the procession as it passed through the corridor.

In the red room were gathered members of the Supreme Court and the older bodies of the judiciary, while the large company overran into the state dining room and corridor. The decorations were charmingly carried out in the various drawing rooms in pink roses and carnations, with a relief of branches of oak leaves and ferns.

Guests Arrive Early.

The early assembling of the guests of honor also gave them the opportunity of watching the grand march of the executive family to the blue room. After the bugle call, the President and Mrs. Harding, preceded by four White House aides, marching to the air of "Hail to the Chief," proceeded to the blue room. The line was particularly short on account of the absence from the city of the Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge and members of the cabinet.

Immediately following the President and Mrs. Harding were the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes and the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, who for the first time had his daughter with him as his official hostess. After them walked the Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Denby and the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace.

The President and Mrs. Harding passed immediately through the group of guests in the blue room to their station for receiving, and adding another change from the judicial receptions of the past was the fact that the Attorney General, Mr. Harry M. Daugherty, stood in line with them as the only member of the cabinet and while fulfilling his official duty also celebrated in a way never before recorded in social history his sixty-second birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Harding Gowned in Pink.

Mrs. Harding wore a stately but simple gown of pink velvet of a delicate shade, draped over lace, the design departing from the string or sash train so much in vogue and instead a narrow and short train being a part of the draped skirt itself. The outline of the gown was undeniably French and very becoming. With it she wore a collar of black velvet, with diamond ornaments, and carried a fan of long black ostrich plumes, which the President carried for her after the reception was over and they again marched in line of precedence up the state stairway.

Mrs. Hughes wore deep rose pink velvet, the skirt draped in graceful fold and a pointed train falling a little to one side at the back. The bodice, which was made of satin, had a trimming of crystals. Miss Mellon wore a gown of ivory velvet, the skirt moderately short and cut in points at the hem line and embroidered in tiny crystal beads and trimmed with ermine tails. The bodice was also surplice, with clusters of the ermine tails on each shoulder. Her only ornament was a string of pearls.

Mrs. Weeks was in black satin made severely plain and with a square train hanging from the shoulders. The only trimming was jade green fringe knotted and hanging from the shoulders almost to the hem of her skirt, held here and there with narrow bands of jets. She wore diamond and pearl ornaments. Mrs. Denby was in black net, made bouffant at the sides and with flowing sleeves of the net. A panel back and front, from shoulders to hem, was of net embroidered in cut steel. Mrs. Wallace wore black velvet, the skirt gracefully draped and with short pointed train, and the bodice was jetted and finished with black tulle. The secretary to the President and Mrs. George H. Christian, Jr., accompanied the executive party, Mrs. Christian wearing a black tulle dress with a wide white short train and with panels back and front of velvet tucked horizontally.

Mrs. Taft in Pale Blue.

Mrs. Taft wore a handsome gown of blue and pale pink velvet, the skirt draped and made on train and the bodice trimmed with blue and pink tulle and blue velvet brocade in delicate design of gold. She wore a diamond necklace and earrings. Mrs. Oliver Wendell Holmes was in black tulle and net. Mrs. Willis Van Devanter wore old rose and silver brocade, the draped skirt made with panel down the back which formed a short and square train. The bodice was made with the upper portion and the sleeves of rose point lace. Mrs. Mallon Pitney was in sapphire blue velvet made straight from the shoulders, and slightly draped over the hips and trimmed with strings of pearls. Mrs. Zarecor, sister of Mr. Justice McReynolds, wore black tulle and jets trimmed with bright blue sequins. Mrs. Louis Dembits Brandeis was in black velvet, the bodice of black thread lace, and the skirt of pale blue and silver. Miss Brandeis wore pale yellow velvet and lace, the only trimming being squares of yellow embroidered in oriental colors.

Among those seen in the blue room and the corridor were Miss Mary Wallace, who wore magenta georgette crepe with a tracery of beads; Miss Ruth Wallace, in jade green georgette embroidered in crystal beads, both daughters of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace. Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett wore royal purple satin draped and trimmed with tulle, a diamond bandeau and necklace. Lady Geddes, wife of the ambassador to Great Britain, wore ruby brocade velvet, the bodice made surplice and the skirt straight with a square train from the shoulders. She wore a narrow band of diamonds in her hair and a white fox scarf. Mrs. Heber Votaw, sister of President Harding, wore pale blue brocade with tulle and crystal trimmings. Mrs. Alcee Pomerene was in deep blue and silver brocade trimmed with white lace.

Mrs. Bryn, wife of the minister of Norway, wore black and silver, and Miss Inger Bryn wore bright blue velvet. Mme. de Caspedes, wife of the minister of Cuba, wore black satin and thread lace with diamond ornaments. Mme. Grouitch, wife of the minister of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, was in a becoming gown, the skirt of deep purple brocade velvet and the bodice of cloth of silver trimmed with touches of purple and several large purple roses, and in her hair a narrow band of small purple flowers. Mrs. Wallenberg, wife of the minister of Sweden, wore black satin made with a train, the bodice of exquisite point lace and silver gauze. Miss Wallenberg was in pale yellow velvet.

Gown of Gold Brocade.

Mrs. Chamorro, wife of the minister of Nicaragua, wore a handsome gown of gold brocade and Miss Enriques was in green and gold with a narrow band of brilliant in her hair. Senora de Ballivian, wife of the minister of Bolivia, wore black velvet and lace and Senora Ballivian was in turquoise tulle made in quaint bouffant skirt and tight-fitting bodice.

Mrs. Panaretto, wife of the minister of Bulgaria, wore gray brocade chiffon trimmed with silver, and a diamond tiara.

Miss Ramona Lefevre was in white crepe de chine, embroidered in pearls, and in her hair a band of pearls with a cluster of silver flowers. Mrs. Stanton J. Pelee wore black net and jet, and Miss Betty Byrne in two-tone taffeta of mauve and silver made in the mode of 1830, trimmed with silver ribbon and a narrow band of silver in her hair. Princess Cantacuzene wore black jetted net, with diamond ornaments on the bodice and in her hair. Princess Bertha Cantacuzene (Continued on Seventh Page.)

"Those Who Dance Must Pay The Fiddler"

There's a settlement in profit or loss, for nearly every indulgence.

Sometimes the pay-day is long deferred, and in that case the settlement may bear compound interest.

Often a payment in ill health is required for the dance had with tea or coffee during earlier years. Sometimes the collection comes in sleeplessness, sometimes in headaches, sometimes in high blood pressure, or in nervous indigestion—sometimes in all these penalties.

Nerves won't always stand the whipping of tea and coffee's drug, caffeine.

If you've been dancing to tea or coffee's fiddling, why keep on till payment time comes? If you're beginning to pay, now, why not cancel the contract?

There's an easy and pleasant way to avoid tea and coffee's penalties, as thousands have found who have changed to Postum. It is a delight with any meal—rich, comforting and satisfying—and it never harms. Even the little children can have a breakfast cup of Postum, with no fear for what may happen to sensitive nerves.

Instead of paying penalties for your meal-time drink, let it pay benefits to you, by giving natural health a full chance—and begin the new arrangement today. Any grocer will sell you, or any good restaurant will serve you Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.
